Memory Verse

Teen Thought

These Christians drew social lines among themselves. Certain cliques were more popular and more important in the church. Are you involved enough in your youth group to see which people are on the "outside"? (are you one of them?) How can you break down walls?

Tips for Teaching

Help your children to understand how others feel when they visit our congregation: apprehensive at being among so many strangers; perhaps uncomfortable because they don't understand everything we are doing, or they may look and sound different from most of "us". Generally when children realize that someone else may feel badly, they are quick to reach out to them. Our children could become our greatest asset in reaching out to new visitors.
