HUNGER, DESPAIR, DEATH IN UKRAINE AGONY

Through the hunger-stricken Ukraine tramps this man seeking his wife and child. He was torn from them and sent to Siberia in 1930. He walked back—4,000 miles—to find that they had vanished.

Wary of the struggle, a mother sought rest at a roadside in the Ukraine. She slept and did not wake. Her baby crawled a few inches before death touched it also.

Thomas Walker, at the risk of his own life, took this photograph near Kiev, U.S.S.R. photos copyrighted by American Newspapers, Inc.

Soviet Starving Tell Own Stories; Jailed for Eating Dogs

STARVATION stalks through the Ukraine section of Soviet Russia, leaving ghastly trail of death and agony. The first signs is the most terrible grain protruding distended stomachs.

The facts contained in the series of articles, of which this is the fourth, were obtained by Thomas Walker, an American newspaperman, now a resident in London, at the peril of his life.

When Mr. Walker entered Russia last Spring he smuggled in a camera.

While photographs shown with these articles were obtained under the most adverse and dangerous possible circumstances, the evidence they present is more grim and graphic than words.

By THOMAS WALKER, Noted Journalist, Traveler and Student of Russian Affairs, Who Has Spent Several Years Touring the Union of Soviet Republics.

ON THE outskirts of Kiev, I met a little blue-eyed girl of nine in a ragged man's greatcoat, of whom I asked some questions. (See photograph.)

Where do you live? "Nowhere."

Where are your parents? "Dead."

Where did they die? "At the village of Chertsevo."

Why did they die? "We had no food."

Where did you sleep last night? "In an empty glass wagon on the other side of the fence."

When did you eat last? "I don't remember."

He was afraid she had died on the way. There was not a crumb of bread in the house, and the boy had not eaten in five days.

For eating dead meat in the streets, he was arrested and sentenced to five years' hard labor on a forced labor farm.

For eating a few grains of wheat in his pockets after the days work, he was sentenced to three years' hard labor.

The dog-eating trial for the Russian "Porkies" is the GPU. The present is not before a judge, who hears the evidence and passes sentence without any argument or other "summary" trial.

If a peasant working on a forced labor farm becomes ill, he may stay away from work and receive no food for a period of several days, provided he can obtain a certificate from the labor camp doctor that the illness is NOT THE RESULT OF HUNGER. These certificates are very hard to get.

More Bodies. (Mother and Baby) In the middle of the afternoon, when I estimated that I had walked fifteen miles from Kiev, I came upon the bodies of two men—women and a baby, lying in a ditch.

The mother had died first, her arms were still raised in the air, holding her child. The baby had died in her arms.

Endless Searching. (For Wife and Child) He stated that they had eaten no food in 1930.

He had walked most of the 4,000 miles back to his home in Zaporozh, to find his wife and child had been turned out of their beds and that no one knew of their whereabouts.

His one obsession was to find his wife.

As a despondent-looking but I found a little boy in a tent, wearing a monkey heavy coat, the photograph.

He stated that his father had been sent to a labor concentration camp early in the Spring, and that his mother had gone into Kiev to try to get food for them.

It was a desperate search for his wife and child. He had been told that they had been sent to Siberia.

PAWNS OF TRAGEDY IN UKRAINE

"I want to die and be buried with my mother," cried this homeless orphan girl, who had wandered on the outskirts of Kiev.

Father in a concentration camp, mother jaded, carried two days in search of food, this boy was found near collapse from hunger.

Children should be taught to consider teachers as “superior to the parent in point of authority.”

We...hold that there is no fundamental right of parents to be the exclusive provider of information regarding sexual matters to their children.

We hold there is no free-standing fundamental right of parents to control the upbringing of their children by introducing them to matters of and relating to sex in accordance with their personal and religious values and beliefs.

We conclude only that the parents possess no constitutional right to prevent the public schools from providing information on [sex education] to their students in any forum or manner they select.
